

University of Cape Town

The Albertina and Walter Sisulu Institute of Ageing in Africa and the Division of Geriatric Medicine invite you to attend a Lecture on Thursday, 17th March, 2pm to 3pm, Venue: Wolfson Pavilion Lecture Theatre

by Mr David Reid, PG Cert. Ed., M.Sc., BA

Senior University Teacher, School of Nursing & Midwifery, University of Sheffield, UK

Topic: “Living well with Dementia: what is the clinician’s role?”

Host: Dr Celeste de Jager (Division of Geriatric Medicine)

David Reid joined the University of Sheffield in 1999 and, apart from a brief period with the Alzheimer’s Society, has been employed as a researcher and now a University Teacher in the School of Nursing and Midwifery. He is a member of the University of Sheffield's Equality and Diversity Board and Disability Liaison Officer for the School. He works closely with colleagues in Dementia South Yorkshire.

Research Interests: Dementia care practice research and relationship-centred approaches to dementia care. In his work on dementia David is committed to exploring what dementia means to those people directly affected: people with dementia, their families and health and social care practitioners.

Teaching Interests: David Reid is the Programme Lead of the cross-faculty team delivering the MA Dementia Studies. Prior to this he led the Foundations in Relationship-Centred Dementia Care course for 5 years and continues to deliver Dementia Awareness education study days in NHS Trusts across south Yorkshire. He also leads the User Expectations of Health and Social Care module on the School’s B.Med.Sci in Health and Human Sciences. He is particularly interested in the co-production of dementia education with people with dementia and their supporters.

Current Projects: Coordinator for the Annual South Yorkshire Dementia Creative Arts Exhibition
