All special pages can be customized by editing them in the same way as any other wiki page.

Default template

The default_template page is used as the template for new pages. You can customize this page (for example to include a navigation structure), or remove its contents so that new pages are created empty.

Help Page

The Help page provides detailed help.

Index

The Index page lists all pages in this wiki. You can also include an index on any wiki page by using the {index} macro.

Recent Changes

The Recent Changes page lists recent changes to all pages in this wiki. You can also include a recent changes list on any wiki page by using the {recent-changes} macro.

Edit Right

View Right

The view_right page is displayed in a column to the right of the current page when viewing a page. This page does not exist by default, but if created can be used to provide a navigation structure or other helpful information for wiki readers (such as an index or list of recent changes).
